Customs-Trade Partnership Against Terrorism is a voluntary joint government and business partnership designed to enhance the overall supply chain and border security. Security should cover the following areas: Procedural (informational security), Physical, Access Controls, Personnel, Education and Training as it relates to security issues. Manifest Procedures (shipping documents) and Conveyance (transportation via trucks, containers and airplanes). C-TPAT initiatives should encompass all business units and related production, transportation and importation elements of the supply chain process. The supply chain is from the point of manufacturer through to and including the receiving location.
